Quality care... because we care

Community

Our community clinic

The Animal Welfare League of Queensland first opened its community vet clinic doors to the public in 2002 providing high quality and caring service to our communities' pets.

With about 25,000 patients visiting the AWL per annum all profits made provide much needed funding for the operations of the AWL Qld rehoming centres. These funds allow the clinic to provide quality veterinary care to the public and to provide charitable veterinary services to patients whose owners are of limited financial means.

Our free ambulance service is on call every night to rescue injured animals needing veterinary treatment. We are true to our promise that no injured or suffering animal will be turned away.

Through our commitment to provide affordable desexing for the public's animals our clinic is playing a major role in working towards reducing the number of unwanted and abandoned pets in our community.

To find out more about the AWL Qld Community Vet Clinic please speak to one of our staff when you're next visiting the AWL Qld.
