“Grey nomads ready to retire”

Chihuahua-mixes Popeye and Olive have bid a fond farewell to their travels on the open road after they arrived at the Animal Welfare League of Queensland on Monday, February 2.

The devoted couple, both aged 10, would love to retire gracefully but first they need to find a loving home after coming to the shelter as strays.

Public relations manager Gabrielle Wheaton said it would be a shame to separate the pair, especially as their decade-long affair seems to have outlasted many modern relationships.

“It would be wonderful to see these two lovebirds find a home,” Miss Wheaton said.

“It can be difficult to try and find a home that can take on two new additions, but we just don’t have the heart to separate these two.

“I don’t think it would be in their best interests to split them up – they were found together and become quite distressed if one is removed.”

Popeye is a miniature Foxy-Chihuahua cross who, despite his age, still loves the challenge of chasing any flies who dare to come too near.

Olive, a dainty and gentle Chihuahua, prefers to take a more reserved approach and loves to be cuddled.

Because of their advanced years, Olive and Popeye are listed as Golden Oldies with the AWL so it will only cost $50 each to adopt them.

All AWL animals are wormed, vaccinated, microchipped, desexed, flea-treated and health and sociability tested.
